Helping Nonprofits and Public Agencies Connect with Volunteers

Does your organization need new volunteers? Expert advice on how to manage your volunteers? New ideas to engage volunteers in high-impact and meaningful ways?

CaliforniaVolunteers is the state office that manages programs and initiatives to increase the number of Californians involved with service and volunteering. CaliforniaVolunteers.org is a “one-stop-shop” Web site where visitors can enter their zip code, identify areas of interest, and be matched with volunteer opportunities right in their own communities.

How Can My Organization Participate?

CaliforniaVolunteers and our statewide network of local volunteer connector agencies (volunteer centers and others) have created a simple, searchable online tool to connect volunteers to nonprofits and public agencies that need them.

To post your organization’s volunteer opportunities to CaliforniaVolunteers.org, contact CaliforniaVolunteers’ local partner for specific instructions — they can also help you explore great ideas to expand your volunteer program. To find the CaliforniaVolunteers local partner in your area, visit www.CaliforniaVolunteers.org/hubs.asp.

How Can My Organization Benefit?

- CaliforniaVolunteers.org hosts the single largest source of volunteer opportunities in California, which eliminates the need to post opportunities in more than one place.
- Access local volunteer management expertise to help you strengthen your volunteer program.
- Statewide and local marketing campaigns drive people to the Web site — and to your volunteer opportunities.
